

Human Trafficking Awareness Day – January 11
Ideas to bring awareness to your church and community
By Barbara Anderson

1. Plan a worship service with a human trafficking theme.
2. Plan a community awareness event in your community. Speaker ideas: local coordinator of a human trafficking awareness organization, police department, Salvation Army.
3. Host a Human Trafficking Mission Fair for American Baptist churches or local churches in your community. Invite local organizations to have a table and display; make displays on each of the Break the Chains grant recipients—email them for flyers and up-to-date information to share on their ministry; have a speaker; have a dinner with a free-will offering to benefit a human trafficking abolitionist group or outreach to trafficking survivors or other related organization.
4. Ask your local library to have a display in the month of January on books in their library on the issue of human trafficking. Make a display board to place with the book display.
5. Write letters to the editor to your local newspaper on the issue or write a guest commentary on the issue for the paper.
6. Have an awareness/fundraiser event to support a local human trafficking abolitionist or outreach organization.
7. Invite women in your community to a Human Trafficking Awareness Breakfast with a speaker.
8. Hold a book discussion using a book on the issue of human trafficking. *Redeeming Love* by Francine Rivers is a great book for this. You might want to do this in conjunction with your local library.
9. Movie Night—Show one of the recommended movies on the “Break the Chains” website (www.abwmbreakthechains.org) and have a discussion afterwards.
10. Prayer Walk/Candlelight Vigil—Plan a prayer walk in your community bringing awareness that human trafficking happens in every community. End at your town center or a church with candles and a time of prayer.
11. Make a traveling mural focusing on victims of human trafficking. (This is a great way to get your youth involved.) Begin in your church and arrange for it to be on display at a different church, the public library, or town hall in your community each week through January. It could also be accompanied by an informational display on the issue.
12. Plan a brown-bag lunch time discussion at your workplace, sharing with your colleagues about the issue of human trafficking.
13. Decorate the outside of your church with lights, purple ribbons, and a human trafficking banner so that your church will be a beacon of light on this issue in the month of January.
